

Miss Me, But Let Me Go

*When I come to the end of the road and the sun has set for me,
I want no rites in a gloom filled room,
Why cry for a soul set free?
Miss me a little-but not too long,
and not with your head bowed low.
Remember the love that we once shared,
Miss me-but let me go.
For this is a journey that we all must take,
And each must go alone.
It's all part of the Master's plan,
A step on the road to home.
When you are lonely and sick at heart,
Go to the friends we know.
Laugh at the things we use to do
Miss me-but let me go.*

Perhaps you sent a lovely card or sat quietly in a chair.
Perhaps you sent a floral piece If so, we saw it there.
Perhaps you spoke the kindest words as any friend could say.
Perhaps you were not there at all just thought of us on that day.
Whatever you did to console our hearts, We Thank You, Whatever the part.

James E. White Jr. was born December 9, 1933 to the late James & Reather White in Dulin, NC. He was the oldest of six siblings.

While James was born in Dulin, NC he was raised in Elizabethtown, NC and was educated in the public school system.

In his early twenties looking for a better life he and his family moved to New Jersey. Through his life he had many job titles and it seemed as if he knew how to do anything. While James was never married he had two wonderful children, Derek and Veronica Jenkins with his loving companion, Eleanor Jenkins.

James was known for his love of fishing and trips to his beloved Atlantic City and was famous for always bringing something back.

On Tuesday, July 24, 2012 James E. White Jr. passed away peacefully at Christ Hospital in Jersey City, NJ.

He is predeceased by both his parents, James Earnest & Reather White, his brother, Preston White, and his sisters, Doris Dean Taylor, and Mary Ann Taylor.

He leaves to cherish his memory: two children, Derek and Veronica Jenkins; his granddaughter, Nasiya Rhodes; his five great-grandchildren, Ajelae, Aniyiz, Adontae, Alexis and Amaury Graves; three brothers, Freddie, Louis and Albert White; his loving companion, Eleanor Jenkins; and a host of other relatives and friends.
